Stream Box DS developers gave highest priority to audio quality from network sources. The rest of the budget was spent for a minimalistic audio board, which does the job in a superlative way.

Because of „Gapless“ and „HD-Audio“ functionality, this player handles each and every album in all possible resolutions in a convincing manner. The resulting sound quality is the correct argument, that the „source first“ construction principle is true even for network players.

No doubt, this DAC-chip never sounded better, than inside Stream DS.

Full metal jacket: casework is very stable.
Connections on back: Ethernet, WLAN, USB on the left, outputs on the right
